This three-day workshop will explore linear and atmospheric perspective. The first day will focus on atmospheric perspective; the second day will cover linear perspective and the third and final day will combine and review both. Each day will include a presentation with written material and a demonstration in oil of the principals covered in that day's lesson. We will be working from photographs and you may choose to work from those provided or from your own sources. You can expect to complete two or three paintings over the course of the workshop. In addition to live feedback conversation as the workshop progresses, you will receive a private written critique with suggested changes done in photoshop for two of your paintings completed for the course.
